Now we all know that we interpreters are a talented bunch

So here's a chance to put those skills to good use. As part of the ASLIA National Conference, we will be holding a Skills Auction to fundraise for WASLI activities in our region.

Money raised will be used to support our colleagues from developing countries who do not have the luxury of attending interpreter training or professional development because of financial limitations.

So.....we are calling on all interpreters in Australia and our international guests to donate a skill, to be auctioned off on Saturday night at the Conference dinner. No skill too big or too small.

Some ideas for you..... (but not yet donated):

- A knitted garment of bidder's choice
- Music lesson
- Massage
- Garden make-over
- Mentoring
- Yoga lessons
- Baby sitting
- Lesson in; a special setting, or computer demystifying, interpreting services, or photography, or cooking, or shopping, or.....???

The possibilities are endless! So dust off your other hat(s), and let's show the world what we can do! Donations can be made as a group as well as individual. If you do not have a skill to auction, we will also accept suitable objects. Let's dig deep and make a real difference for the interpreting profession in our region!
